The finest beach and best bathing on the Atlantic coast. Go and enjoy the sea breezes. Fare for the round trip, Ocala and Citra, $1.

Mr. J. T. Yonce, of Appleton City, Mo., who has been on a few weeks' visit to his daughter, Mrs. Robert R. Carroll, of this city, leaves on the midnight train for his Missouri home, highly pleased with Florida, and says that upon his return in the course of a year he hopes to see great strides in the new orange industry. His daughters, Mrs. Robert R. and Miss Nona, will follow him in a few days to spend the summer with their mother in Missouri.

W. E. Thomas has gone into partnership with Colonel Adam Eichelberger for the purpose of manufacturing cigars from Florida leaf exclusively. The factory will be located on the colonel's farm just outside of the city, where they expect to employ from 15 to 20 men, and will commence operations Monday. They have sent off samples of their goods and in a few days expect to receive several large orders. This is a very worthy enterprise, and should meet with hearty co-operation from our people. This will be the opening of the manufacturing of Florida tobacco in Ocala.

It Would Save Much Trouble.

Somebody in the house, and it may as well be you, dear daughter Jane or Charlotte, should take it upon herself to see that the daily papers are not spirited off to line closet shelves or kindle the kitchen fire before they are a week old. Father often wishes to refer to last Thursday's Sun or Tribune, Brother Tom wants another look at yesterday's STAR or the Weekly Record or Register, whatever the favorite paper may be. Nothing is more annoying than to search the house over—mother's room, the back parlor, the library, the halls—and discover no trace of the longed-for sheet, which probably has been dissolved into ashes, fluff and smoke, to save Bridget a little trouble. You might charge yourself with seeing that no paper is ever destroyed until it is a whole week old. Also, when a paper contains an item or a story which will probably interest grandmother or Uncle Roger in another town, it is very sweet in you to slip a wrapper around the paper, first marking the column in question, and mail it to the person to whom it will give pleasure. Do not forget the marking. Nobody likes to spend a morning hunting for the reason why a paper has been sent to him.—Mrs. Sangster in Harper's Round Table.

Combining Business and Pleasure.

A Kensington flagman at a railroad crossing has his own device for a trysting place. His duties keep him busy all night long at the flag and the gates. Then when he is asleep by day his sweetheart, a neighbor's rosy-cheeked daughter, is away from home at work. His predicament has worried him. If he should neglect his post for even a quarter of an hour during an evening to call at the home of his charmer the gates would be left up, and some wayfarer might be killed by a wildcat locomotive at the crossing. So Mr. Flagman the other night evolved and entertained a happy thought.

There is a vacant house with an ampy shaded veranda only twenty feet from his crossing. Upon this porch he placed an easy chair from the parlor at home. The sweetheart was covertly informed that the chair was there and that it would certainly be vacant from 8 to 9 nightly, unless she should consent to fill it, and that it was big enough for two. The chair is now fully occupied each evening; the lovemaking is not neglected; and yet all the trains and wayfarers and wildcats are properly watched and flagged.—Philadelphia Record.

Died.

A telegram received from Jacksonville last night announced the death of Herbert A. Bishop at Asheville, N. C., last Tuesday morning. Mr. Bishop had suffered for some time from bronchial affections, and his death had been expected for some time.
